Module Guide
Urban Places
SCH5455

MA/PGDip/PGCert Arts & Place

Module Leader: Dr Tine Bech
Other Module Staff: Dr Jo Joelson
Welcome to the Urban Places (SCH5455) module.

This module explores the development of arts practice in an urban residency context through fieldwork with a residency host and the development of a project. Students extend their understanding and creative engagement with the complexity of place into urban contexts.

This module will explore development of arts practice in urban residency contexts, through fieldwork at one of the host locations. It offers an opportunity to deepen collaboration, explore forms of collaborative interdisciplinary engagement, offer value to the host and contribute to a network of learning about complexity and grand challenges. The hosts provide an orientation and introduction to the context and give feedback on the final proposals developed.

Working in collaboration with peers and with support from your tutor you will develop a new residency project proposal. You will give an oral presentation on the proposal to your peers, hosts and tutors. The presentation should be supported by visual, performative, sonic or sculptural material, a model or schematic, a creative text or any other pertinent means of materialising your ideas. You will write a 500-word critical account of the project development process and outcomes and your role within it.

You will further enact techniques for engaging with place introduced in the first module, such as walking/deriving, photography (still, moving, drone), sketching, extending through imaginary transpositions, interviews, historical research and so on.

This module also includes development of professional practice skills, which continues throughout the course. These skills include understanding contracts and briefs, writing proposals, gaining funding, pitching ideas, giving presentations, blogging, developing workshop and facilitation skills, enhancing time management and project management skills.
